FREDERIC/MADAME/FROLLO/PHOEBUS

FREDERIC: (To Madame) We're looking for La Esmerelda. (Goes to search the place)

MADAME: Never heard of her. But maybe one of my girls can be of service. Ah, Captain Phoebus. Nice to see you again.

(PHOEBUS looks away embarrassed)

FROLLO: Is this your establishment?

MADAME: Yes. And a man like you shouldn't be here, sullyng your pristine reputation.

FREDERIC: (Re-enters) No one else is left, your grace.

FROLLO: Then she must be cleverly hidden. If you want your house to remain standing, give us the gypsy girl.

MADAME: I know nothing of gypsy girls.

FROLLO: Very well. We'll set fire to it. And if, as you claim it's empty, it won't matter if we bar the door as well.

MADAME: No...no, you mustn't!

FROLLO: A lesson needs to be learned here. (To PHOEBUS) Burn it. Did you hear me, Captain?
